SEYMOUR SYCLE,

633 East Broad Street.
Corner Seventh.

Afterglow.
"Westward the sun beyond the tumbled valley Sank slowly; and in sinking gathered And waves of lapping ripples; and so dropped
Sheer out of sight, below the wooded tops Which crowned the western slopes, and left behind Swart silence on the ramparts of the hills.
"Yet ere a star had signaled from the north,
Against the dark horizon upward grew,
And spread and blossomed as an opening rose.
An ivory gleam of rarest afterglow.
That bloomed between the moonrise and the dusk.

"Marvel it was, and strangely beautiful And ghostly in its phosphorescent calm.
As though the lights of some long-buried world Had turned with the turning earth and dug their sheen,
Pale as dead lilacs waxen-pale and wan—Athenian the glimmering portals of the night."

Latimer—Mayo.

In historic St. Paul's Church at 6 P. M., November 25th, the wedding of Miss Anne Mayo, the daughter of the late William Carrington Mayo and Mrs. Mayo, to Mr. James Brandt Latimer, of Chicago, was celebrated, the Rev.
Robert A. Gibson being the celebrant.

The church aisles and chancel were canvassed in white. The altar and chancel were beautifully decorated by Mossimer with asparagus fern, smilax and white chrysanthemums against a background of silver green palms. Tall altar candles glowed like roses from a mass of feathery fern and white blossoms, and the seats in the body of the church were marked off with white satin ribbon and chrysanthemums.
Professor Reinhardt rendered the wedding music at the entrance and exit of the bridal party.

The maid of honor was Miss Nina Russell Selfridge, daughter of Commander Selfridge, of the United States navy. Miss Itha Livingston Mayo, Miss Douglas Wise, Miss Alice Eames, of Boston, and Miss Margaret Cropper Watkins were the bridesmaids. The groom was attended by Mr. Wallace Latimer Ball, of Baltimore, as best man, and by Mr. George W. Mayo, Mr. George Fitzgerald, Mr. Mason S.
Tennant, and Dr. Lawrence T. Price.

Miss Sarah Sergeant Oppenheimer and Miss Ethel Alston Cabell were two dainty little flower maids, in white silk mull and white liberty satin sashes. They bore in their hands green mosses which heaped up like pine cones.

The bride walked to the altar with her brother-in-law, Dr. W. T. Oppenheimer, by whom she was given away. She was exquisitely gowned in white Messaline satin made in Directoire fashion, and trimmed in point lace with swatches of white net. Her hand embroidery.
Her veil was held by a diamond sunburst, a bridal gift from Mr. Latimer.
She carried a shower of lilies of the valley.

The toasts were by the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were escorted to the table by the bride. The bride wore a cloak of pink crepe de chine, the chiffon being shirred and having skirt panels and corsage yoke of pink lace. A bouquet of pink roses tied with pink gauze, made a most harmonious and fragrant finish in color. The fair group of maids were dressed in white, with white over pink tulle, applied with white lace and having the full waists, held with white liberty satin girdles. They carried sheaves of Imperial white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. William C. Mayo, the mother of the bride, wore an elegant gray broadcloth, trimmed in heavy gray lace and chiffon. Her flowers were violets. Mrs.
W. T. Oppenheimer was in white chiffon cloak, garnished in chiffon and lace.
Mrs. St. Julian Oppenheimer was also in white, her gown being of panne crepe de chine.

A reception in the home of the bride, No. 106 North Ninth Street, followed the ceremony, and was largely attended, the wedding being one of the most fashionable of the year in Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Latimer left later in the evening for New York, from which point they will sail for Europe in the steamer
"The Windermere," Chicago, when they return.

A profusion of wedding gifts, elegant and costly in the extreme, evidenced the pleasant remembrance in which the bride and groom were surrounded. The sun and famous Southern families, are held by their large circle of relatives and friends.
